

U.S. Wine Shipping Laws, State by State

Source: Taken from Robert Taylor, Wine Spectator website, posted July 14, 2014

Courtesy of Ship Compliant

Alphabetical State-by-State Listing

Alabama Direct shipping prohibited. Consumers may order wines from out-of-state wineries but must obtain permission from the state liquor authority and have the wine sent to an ABC store for pickup and payment of taxes.

Alaska Direct winery shipping permitted; direct retailer shipping permitted, except to dry communities.

Arizona Limited winery direct shipping. Consumers may purchase wines on winery premises and have them shipped home. Arizona residents may also have wine shipped to them from small wineries making 20,000 gallons of wine a year or less, without making an on-site visit. Retailer shipping prohibited.

Arkansas Direct shipping prohibited, with on-site exception: Consumers must visit the winery in person to have wine shipped to their home, up to 1 case per calendar quarter. Retailer shipping prohibited.

California Direct winery shipping permitted; reciprocal retailer shipping permitted.

Colorado Direct winery shipping permitted; retailer shipping prohibited.

Connecticut Direct winery shipping permitted, up to 5 gallons every two months; retailer shipping prohibited.

Delaware Direct shipping prohibited, with on-site exception: Delaware residents may visit an out-of-state winery and bring or ship wine back to their homes, but shipping by common carriers (FedEx, UPS) is prohibited. Retailer shipping prohibited.

District of Columbia Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 1 case per month; retailer shipping permitted.

Florida Winery direct shipping permitted; retailer shipping prohibited.

Georgia Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 12 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Hawaii Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 6 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Idaho Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 24 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Illinois Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 12 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Indiana Direct shipping prohibited, with on-site exception: Wineries must not be represented by an Indiana distributor, and consumers must visit the winery in person to have wine shipped to their home, up to 24 cases per year. Retailer shipping prohibited.

Iowa Winery direct shipping permitted; retailer shipping prohibited.

Kansas Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 12 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Kentucky Limited winery direct shipping. Kentucky residents may have wine shipped to them from small wineries making 50,000 gallons of wine or less per year, except in dry counties, however, common carriers (FedEx, UPS) will not deliver to Kentucky. Retailer shipping prohibited.

Louisiana Limited winery direct shipping permitted. Wineries may ship wines that are not carried by a Louisiana distributor, up to 12 cases per year. Retailer shipping permitted.

Maine Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 12 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Maryland Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 18 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Massachusetts Winery direct shipping permitted, effective Jan. 1, 2015, up to 12 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Michigan Winery direct shipping permitted; retailer shipping prohibited.

Minnesota Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 2 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Mississippi Direct shipping prohibited.

Missouri Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 2 cases per month; reciprocal retailer shipping permitted.

Montana Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 18 cases per year; retailer direct shipping prohibited.

Nebraska Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 1 case per month; retailer shipping permitted.

Nevada Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 12 cases per year; retailer shipping permitted.

New Hampshire Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 12 cases per year; retailer shipping permitted.

New Jersey Limited winery direct shipping. New Jersey residents may have up to 12 cases of wine per year shipped to their home from small wineries making 250,000 gallons of wine or less per year. Retailer shipping prohibited.

New Mexico Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 2 cases per month; reciprocal retailer shipping permitted.

New York Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 36 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

North Carolina Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 2 cases per month; retailer shipping prohibited.

North Dakota Winery direct shipping permitted; retailer shipping permitted.

Ohio Limited winery direct shipping. Ohio residents may have up to 24 cases of wine per year shipped to their home from small wineries making 250,000 gallons of wine or less per year. Retailer shipping prohibited.

Oklahoma Direct shipping prohibited.

Oregon Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 2 cases per month; retailer shipping permitted.

Pennsylvania Direct shipping prohibited.

Rhode Island Direct shipping prohibited, with on-site exception: Rhode Island residents may visit an out-of-state winery and have wine shipped to them, however, it is illegal for a common carrier (FedEx, UPS) to deliver wine in Rhode Island to anyone who does not have a valid wholesaler license. Retailer shipping prohibited.

South Carolina Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 2 cases per month; retailer shipping prohibited.

South Dakota Direct shipping prohibited.

Tennessee Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 3 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Texas Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 4 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Utah Direct shipping prohibited.

Vermont Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 12 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Virginia Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 2 cases per month; retailer shipping permitted.

Washington Winery direct shipping permitted; retailer shipping prohibited.

West Virginia Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 2 cases per month; retailer shipping permitted.

Wisconsin Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 12 cases per year; retailer shipping prohibited.

Wyoming Winery direct shipping permitted, up to 2 cases per year; retailer shipping permitted.